In City Hall Today.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 29.—The fire swept, smoke, strews and water drenched New York state's magnificent $27,000,000 dollar capital, stands this morning a partial wreck by the flames that started in the assembly library, burned away the entire west wing and did damage estimated at between eight and ten million dollars, before the flames were controlled.

The fire was discovered at 2:15 a.m. and raged for more than four hours. It is believed that the fire started by a fused electric push button, becoming electrified.

Four men reported missing, Samuel Abbott and Fred Wayler, watchmen; Thomas Booth, the capitol attache, and an employee of the document room.

Every state employee and newspaper man added the firemen without success. The fire quickly gutted the assembly library containing 30,000 volumes of priceless records and state documents, some of them dating back to 1776. State business will be suspended.

The fire started from a defective wiring and spread through the western portion of the building, destroying everything from the third floor upwards.

Other portions of the building, the Senate and assembly chamber are water logged. The fire still smoldered at ten this morning, although under control.

There was no insurance, that being against the state's policy.

The disaster will not interfere with the state Senatorial vote. It is planned to hold a session today in the city hall. The democratic caucus adjourned at two a. m. to convene at ten. The fire started one hour later.

All the ornate furnishings of the building, costing millions, were ruined by the fire and water.

State Architect Ware issued a statement—the loss by a rough estimate to be about five millions, exclusive of the valuable records in the state library, which can never be replaced.

Testimony of "Lumber King" in Lorimer Affairs Says Taft and Others Involved.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., March 29.—With former "general manager of the United States" Nelson W. Aldrich, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, and President Taft, the "partner in interest," the state Lorimer investigation resumed its hearings today in an attempt to clear up the story told on the stand Tuesday by "Lumber King" Edward Hines. That Taft wanted Lorimer elected to break the Illinois deadlock.

Kohlsaat's Story.
H. H. Kohlsaat, publisher of the Chicago Record-Herald, told the Senate investigating committee today he knew that $100,000 had been used to procure the election of Lorimer to the Senate. He then refused to give the committee the source of his information notwithstanding the committee had power to imprison him because of his refusal.

The committee held executive session at which Kohlsaat was present. The same questions were asked again, but he refused to answer. When the doors were reopened he was given a third opportunity to answer, but remained silent. Kohlsaat was then excused until Thursday, with the admonition that he must then answer the questions regarding the money.

Dolles Report.

Washington, March 29.—Prompt denial was made here today by friends of President Taft of the report from Springfield, Ill., that Taft had joined with Senator Aldrich in urging the election of Senator Lorimer. Edward Hines, a Chicago lumberman, at the Lorimer hearing in Springfield yesterday, testified that Aldrich had told him that Taft was anxious that Lorimer should be selected.

DISCUSSED THE BOY QUESTION

MONTHLY MEETING OF SOCIAL UNION GIVEN OVER TO INTERESTING SUBJECT.

MEN TOLD OF PROBLEMS

Talks By Prof. A. W. Burr of Beloit and Prof. A. J. Hutton of State Industrial School.

"Our Duty to the Incurable and Unfortunate Children" was the topic for discussion at the regular monthly banquet and meeting of the Social Union at the Y. M. C. A. last evening. The general interest in this topic combined with the fact that two of the best qualified speakers on the subject of "Boys" in this state had been secured for the program helped to make the meeting of last evening one of the best in the history of the organization. After a bountiful chicken pie supper, there was a short business session, at which time it was decided, upon the recommendation of the committee, to change the date of Ladies' night to April 25. Following this, Dr. A. L. Burdick, leader of the evening, made a few remarks on the topic for discussion and introduced the first speaker, Prof. A. W. Burr of Beloit college. Prof. Burr had for his subject, "The Boy Scout Movement", and in a most interesting way told of the origin of this world wide movement and what the possibilities were for its future. The fact that was emphasized by him was, that there was a tendency today, in the development of the boy, to let a great deal of energy go to waste. The growing boy has a certain amount of energy, directed into different channels, and the problem of directing this in the right path was what the boy scout movement had undertaken. These "scouts", who now number over 300,000 the world over, had their origin during the Boer war in South Africa at a time when Baden-Powell, the founder, had pressed into service a number of youths at the siege of one of the cities.

"Every boy", he said, "is possessed with a spirit of adventure and the future of the boy depends upon the way this spirit is directed. In England the tendency is to hold up before the boy scout some character which he should emulate, while in America the idea of adventure and the getting back to the primitive is emphasized, and in the two ideals we find an ideal training for the youth. The problem at present is to so direct the adventurous spirit that there will be no chance for it to take the wrong course."

Another thing, which is accomplished by this movement, is the breaking down of class spirit which is so prevalent today. Gangs are all right if the leader is all right and the scouts are always under a good leader, whom they respect. Many episodes which boys get into are merely a result of their desire to do something and if this is directed and done in the companionship of clean and upright lads, it is for the best.

"Prof. Burr is a man who is well qualified to speak on the subject of boys and he held his audience by enlightening anecdotes of his own life as a boy contrasting the conditions of those times with today."

The talk of Prof. A. J. Hutton, Supt. of the Wisconsin Industrial School for Boys at Waukesha, and formerly superintendent of the school for the blind here, on "Boys", was instructive and thoroughly enjoyable, backed up as it was by a world of experience along the line of the training of the youth.

"The problem of today", he stated, "is the prevention of juvenile delinquency and not the cure of it. Criminally are the result of the civilization of the day and the time has come when our energy must be directed, not to vengeance and punishment, but to the rearing of the youth in such a manner that they will be prepared to meet the conditions which surround them."

"Every boy has the right to be well born, and the inter-marrying of people unqualified for the raising of children should be discouraged. Every boy has the right to a sound body and pure food, fresh air and a good playground are his right. If it should mean the tearing down of whole blocks of business buildings, it is the right of every boy to have a happy childhood and every effort should be made on the part of the parent to see that he has. And above all the youth has a right to the good example of his elders."

In this period when the old fashioned home life has disappeared, therefore, it is the duty of all to so change the methods of rearing the young, that these boys may be brought up in a fearing of God and an reverence of the home and its influence. The wants of the boy are many and when these wants get beyond the stage where they can be satisfied it leads to crime. Child labor legislation, playgrounds, the "scout" movement and other things of this nature are a tendency in the right direction."

Upon the calling for discussion, Rev. J. W. Laughlin gave a short talk in which he expressed the opinion that things along the line of boy development were on the incline. He said that he was optimistic in the extreme and that in his mind the outlook for a better training for the youth in the future was most bright.

Two Old Landmarks

BLACKSMITH SHOP OWNED BY HANLEY B. SEXTON.—ONE OF LANDMARKS OF JANESEVILLE.

THE OLD MURDOCK HOME, NOW USED FOR AN OFFICE, WAS BUILT OVER HALF CENTURY AGO.

Two buildings long connected with the history of Janesville that still stand as landmarks of the early days are the old home of the late Edwin Murdock, now used as the office of F. D. Murdock's feed store, at the corner of Franklin and Wall streets, and the blacksmith shop of Hanley B. Sexton at the corner of North Jackson and Wall streets.

The Murdock homestead is the more ancient of the two, having been built some time previous to the Civil War, probably in the Fifties.

The structure was made of logs hewn from solid oak and has stood the wear and tear of years far better than modern dwellings of sawed timber, and today is as well preserved as twenty-five years ago. Some years ago the house was moved from its original location to its present site, a modern flat building (shown in the background of the photograph) taking its place. A barn was built at the same time the house was constructed, but this has been torn down and now the two buildings now remaining, used by Mr. Murdock in his feed business, will be razed and the ground divided into lots, or a more up-to-date building put on it.

Mr. Sexton several years ago retired from the business and the place is at present used for the same purpose for which it was built, by R. D. Hepp. Repairs are now being made on the place and the rear has been rebuilt and is at present the quarters of Contractor Cornelius Hayes.

It is expected that this building will be torn down during the coming summer and a new up-to-date structure erected.

He will probably be greatly appreciated by the new chairman.

En Famille.
Willie, a little country boy, six years of age, was taken one Sunday night to a large city church, where he saw for the first time a vested choir. To his mother's surprise and gratification, he not only kept wide awake, but seemed greatly interested in every part of the service. At its close he turned to her and said, "I like this church, it is no nice to watch the preacher when he comes out with all his wives in their nightgowns," Harpur's Magazine.

EXCELLENT COMPANY IN CITY THIS WEEK

Frank Dudley Stock Company Giving Good Satisfaction—Drama of Love and Politics Tonight.

The Dudley Stock company, now appearing at the Myers theatre, is unquestionably the best stock company which has ever appeared in the city.

Last evening they presented "The New Donalton," Clay Clement's famous comedy drama, in a manner which clearly demonstrated the capabilities of the company to be above the average. Mr. Dudley as the German Baron, gave a very fine impersonation of the role and he was given good support at all times. Unhappily most week stands there but few specialties between the acts and these are of a high order.

Tonight the company will present "The Rival Candidates," a comedy drama that embodies love and politics and has, thrown in, one of the greatest horse race scenes on the stage today. The piece tonight is also a feature on account of the beautiful costumed worn by the ladies, and the horse race scene has been worked up to the highest state of perfection.

Friday night the company will put on "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," with all of its weird lighting effects and mysterious transformations. There will be a special comedy matinee on Saturday afternoon at which time every child present will be given a bag of candy.

MILITIA TEAM WON CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Company F of Portage Victorious Last Night in Battle for Basketball Title of Wisconsin.

Company F basketball team of Portage is now the champion of the state, following last evening's contest in the armory at Portage between the Portage five and the Lakota Cardinals. The Cardinals, who were Portage's strongest opponents, were defeated 43 to 31.

The match was one of the best the Portage fans have ever witnessed on their own floor and they admitted this met freely. The militia boys have played with the best teams throughout the country and out of seventy-five, lost only five. The Janesville squad made a good showing against the soldiers and the defeat is in no way a disgrace. It was the first time a visiting team has made thirty points against Portage on its own floor.

The Cardinals were at a disadvantage because of the lineup, three entirely new men taking the place of regulars who were unable to take the Portage trip. The five selected, however, did fairly well at team work and for a time in the first half had a lead of 6 to 2 over the guardmen. Portage at the end of the first half had the tally was 20 to 12 in favor of Janesville's opponents.

The match was very even in the first half although Portage maintained their position throughout and made two baskets more than the locals in that session.

Details of the game:

Field goals: Janesville—Murphy, 7; Cunningham, 4; Brown, 3; O'Connell, 1. Free throws: Brown, 1.

Field goals: Portage—Jonda, 7; Brooks, 6; Harper, 5; Ebert, 1; Schneider, 2.

EFFICIENT WORK ON LIBRARY CATALOGUE

Has Been Done At Local Public Library By Students From Wis. State Library School.

For the past few weeks two students of the Wisconsin university library school, Miss Florence E. Dunton and Miss Margaret Greene, have been engaged in a successful effort to increase the efficiency of the books in the public library by making the card catalogue a more complete and practical index to the volumes on the shelves.

In order to answer the many requests for information on certain definite subjects and make all the material on the shelves available for this purpose, in addition to the author and title cards, which formerly represented the books, cards are being made showing, in red letter headings, the subject covered by a book as a whole and the more specific subjects treated in different parts of the book, with an indication of the amount of material and its method of treatment.

Last year, during the months of February and March, students from the Wisconsin Library School, reconditioned in this manner all the books about social and industrial problems, politics and government, education and history. This year the work has been continued by the students with the books in the classes of literature, including poems, essays, letters, humor books, orations and dramas. In this last form of literature the library collection is especially strong and many of the new and popular dramas have recently been added. Any who feel an interest in the movement which is being promoted for the improvement and the popularizing of the drama, will find pleasure in looking over the books catalogued under the subjects drama and dramas and making their selection for reading.

It is hoped that the improvement of the catalogue will lead to a more general use of it by the people of the town and a more extended knowledge of the resources of their own library.

A few of the popular and interesting dramas in the library:

Kennedy, C. R.: "Servant in the House."

Macterlinck, Maurice: "The Bluebird."

Macterlinck, Maurice: "Mary Magdalene."

Moody, W. V.: "The Great Divide."

Peabody, J. P.: "The Piper."

Rostand, Edmond: "Chantecler."

Turkington, Booth: "Man From Home."

Zangwill, Israel: "Mollie Poi."

MISSING ARTICLES RETURNED

The Little Linotype or Two on the Back Page Responsible.

The power of the Want Ad is great. It extends from the one end of the list of human wants to the very other extreme. A noticeable incident was that affecting the return last week of such a prosaic article as a wagon nut. The nut was lost in the afternoon, a "LOST" ad inserted. In that day's issue, twenty minutes after the paper was off the press the nut was returned to the owner, the finder stating that he had noticed the ad or otherwise would not have known to whom the nut belonged.

And so it goes on. Many, many more incidents similar to the above might be cited and others where articles of value such as watches, fobs, money, checks, purses and other things have been returned through this effective medium.

In checking up over a long period of time it is found that in over 75 cases out of a hundred, articles lost and advertised for are returned.

Even now many articles, returned through the Lost Column, reappear at this office awaiting the call of the owners—a bunch of keys, a pair of baby's shoes, a check book, a paper of needles, a pocket book containing money, a baby's hand bag, a University pin, several watches, an automobile curtain top and a lady's brown coat.

Beyond a doubt the Lost Column of the Want ads is by far the best way to go about securing the return of any lost article.

THEATERS

On the Friday preceding Palm Sunday, April 7, the chorus of St. Peter's English Lutheran church will sing Stener's beautiful Lenten meditation, "The Crucifixion."

The chorus consists of forty voices and will be assisted by Mr. L. N. Matthews, basso, and Mr. Alfred Olson, tenor, and other soloists of the city. Mrs. Clara Olson will play the organ accompaniments.

Stener's "Crucifixion" is probably the most popular of the more elaborate choral compositions which have for their theme the passion of Christ. The text, by the Rev. J. Sparrow Simpson, illustrates the great facts of holy week and consists mostly of scripture paraphrase. The cantata is interspersed with hymns to be sung by the congregation, giving it the character of a common service rather than that of a concert. Stener is without doubt the greatest of recent composers of church music and in this meditation his interpretative art is found at its best.

The audience will be furnished with complete copies of the text so that there may be no difficulty in following and participating in the service.

DEPRESSION FELT BY BOTH RAILROADS

Men At Northwestern Shops Have Reduced To 8 Hours and 5 Day Schedule.—St. Paul Switching Crews Reduced.

There is a general depression felt by both the railroads here as is evidenced by the fact that the men at the South Janesville shops have been reduced to an eight hour a day and five days a week schedule, and that the St. Paul switching crews have been cut down to two men instead of three.

The new schedule for work at the Northwestern shops went into effect yesterday and will continue until notice is given of a change to the former hours. Only one half of the force will work on Saturdays. How long this change in the working hours will last is not known. "It may be for a month and it may be for all summer," said W. W. Hoffmann, roundhouse foreman, today. "It all will depend on the future business outlook of the country and other conditions. Of course we will have a good deal of work here but we have received orders to cut down the time and we have acted accordingly."

There are men at the shops every day looking for work, but there has been no opening of late, owing to the slackness of business. At the St. Paul shops the eight hour a day and five days a week schedule is still in force and present prospects for it change to the former hours are not bright.

There were not many as twelve engines at the roundhouse and in the yards this morning. The force of the switching crews have been reduced from three men to two per engine, thus leaving off three men, two from the day crews and one from the night.

It is hoped that spring business will restore the traffic and work to former conditions, but it cannot be said as yet whether there will be any immediate improvement. Reports are prevalent that more of the men may be laid off but this is also doubted on good grounds.

Conductor Lane and Engineer Pettersen brought the train into this station and Conductor Ziegler and Engineer Corning took the train out of here.

It is expected that engine 300 of the Wisconsin division, the frame of which was welded Saturday, will leave the local shops some time today. Engines 754, 962, and 886 of the Northern Wisconsin division, have been in the shops this month for general overhauling. 754 and 886 have left the shops and 962 is expected to be ready by the 31st of the month.

Gains in Foreign Commerce.

The annual report of the chamber of commerce says that in the year ended June 30 New York's foreign commerce aggregated $1,727,006,057, which is a gain of $205,033,907 over 1909. The city's share of the total foreign commerce of the country was 48.45 per cent, against 47.41 per cent in the previous year and 48.41 per cent in 1909. In the last year and the last decade New York's foreign commerce has increased faster than that of the whole country.—New York Sun.

By WALT MASON.

It's seldom that I chase down to the wailing place. I see so many go to that resort of woe, fresh curses to invent, to roast the government, to boast the grouch's cause, to clamor for new laws, to have the old repealed, that all men may be healed. And I am bailing hay, the good old fashioned way. I do my daily grind with calm, contented mind; I'm uttering no roar; I have no curse or song; the world seems pretty gay, while I am bailing hay. These men who rant and fret o'er pearls they have not, who prance and chow the raze about the country's flag and how it flutters and waves above a gang of knaves—what fun do they extract from this, their daily act? What good do they pursue with all their whoopay? What comforts have they bought with all their tommyrot? What jingles have they spun with all their toll and pain? I earn my livelihood by sawing piles of wood; I saw the whole year long, and I see nothing wrong. I always get my pay when ended is the day, and to my home repair, and bid no wailing.

The new schedule for work at the Northwestern shops went into effect yesterday and will continue until notice is given of a change to the former hours. Only one half of the force will work on Saturdays. How long this change in the working hours will last is not known. "It may be for a month and it may be for all summer," said W. W. Hoffmann, roundhouse foreman, today. "It all will depend on the future business outlook of the country and other conditions. Of course we will have a good deal of work here but we have received orders to cut down the time and we have acted accordingly."

There are men at the shops every day looking for work, but there has been no opening of late, owing to the slackness of business. At the St. Paul shops the eight hour a day and five days a week schedule is still in force and present prospects for it change to the former hours are not bright.

There were not many as twelve engines at the roundhouse and in the yards this morning. The force of the switching crews have been reduced from three men to two per engine, thus leaving off three men, two from the day crews and one from the night.

It is hoped that spring business will restore the traffic and work to former conditions, but it cannot be said as yet whether there will be any immediate improvement. Reports are prevalent that more of the men may be laid off but this is also doubted on good grounds.

Chicago & Northwestern.

The second section of Ringling Brothers circus passed through this city last night at 8:57 en route from Baraboo to Chicago, where they will open the season in the Coliseum on Saturday of this week. The section left Baraboo yesterday afternoon at five o'clock in charge of Conductor Pelley and Engineer Doenman. Several more sections are to follow.

An immigrant train of nine cars, eight coaches and a baggage car, passed through this city yesterday afternoon, as the second section of 541, en route from eastern Canadian points to Winnipeg and other cities in Manitoba. There were between three and four hundred families aboard and the cars were in excellent condition, being nearly new. Conductor Lane and Engineer Pettersen brought the train into this station and Conductor Ziegler and Engineer Corning took the train out of here.

It is expected that engine 300 of the Wisconsin division, the frame of which was welded Saturday, will leave the local shops some time today. Engines 754, 962, and 886 of the Northern Wisconsin division, have been in the shops this month for general overhauling. 754 and 886 have left the shops and 962 is expected to be ready by the 31st of the month.

AN EXPERT OPINION.

Just at this time, with a municipal election near at hand, it is interesting to read what is said of the commission form of government by such an authority as the Christian Science Monitor of Boston.

It can be said truthfully in a general way that commission government, so far as it has been tested, is justifying itself. Even when most important, it is an improvement over the old system. While it greatly enlarges opportunity for radical and sometimes unwise experimentation in local administration, it affords opportunity for speedy correction of errors. In California, where a large measure of delegation is granted to municipalities in the matter of charter amendment, experiments are being made which tend toward public ownership on an extensive scale. This is true of Los Angeles in particular, where the way has been opened by the referendum for the municipal operation of all kinds of public utilities. In undertaking to manage enterprises that have heretofore required the attention of efficiently officered private corporations, Los Angeles, of course, will assume a great responsibility; but the country and the world will hardly discourage that energetic and progressive community merely because risk accompanies the undertaking. Rather will the country and the world await the result with great and sympathetic interest.

People of towns and cities have long desired the privilege of conducting their communities in their own way. It is not yet the wheat plan to grant absolute home rule to all places. There are conditions in many of the great centers of population which make it necessary that the state shall exercise a measure of jurisdiction, a measure of restraint, over the local authority; but of late the home rule principle has been extended to many towns and cities in the different states, and the tendency is in this direction. Some of these communities, after trying new methods of government for a time, have found them defective in certain particulars and are now striving to correct them. We find an example of this in the case of Grand Rapids, Mich. It is now looking to ward an improvement upon the commission system. It proposes to do away, as much as possible, with elected offices. With a mayor and three assistants, a comptroller, attorney and clerk, it is felt that the municipality can be managed better than if it had to carry a regiment of local officials. It will have a board of aldermen, however, and here is the point where it will differ from the commission idea.

But details in any case are secondary to the point that, so far as enabling legislative acts or liberal interpretation of statutes have permitted, communities are struggling to improve their local government. In those instances where there is an apparent failure there should be no harsh criticism or hasty judgment. Out of all the seeming unrest and confusion there seems sure to emerge a clearer and a more exalted sense of individual responsibility for better municipal rule."

CITY AFFAIRS.

Janesville is on the verge of a municipal election. A mayor, city clerk, five aldermen, five supervisors, school commissioners and a recorder of weights and measures are to be chosen. The election of a mayor is thought by many will decide all the evils that may exist, or might exist in the city. The true facts are that the mayor is but the figurehead of the city government. Under our special charter provision he is the nominal head of the city but his hands are tied unless he has the backing of the council. The ten members of this body are the real rulers of the city.

Department heads may revolt against their dictation but the fact remains that sooner or later they must comply with the requests, or demands, of the aldermen. Considerable furor was created some days ago when it was suggested that if the present saloon ordinance was not sufficient to compel the liquor dealers who evade the law from being kept closed on Sundays why then repeal it. Exact another that would permit them to do business on Sundays in a legitimate manner and not have to revert to the idea of constructing an "airship" to be freed from responsibility when the case comes into court.

The Gazette has always had the best interests of the citizens and taxpayers at heart and has always "Hewn to the line, let the chips fall where they may." It believes that the time has come for radical changes—changes that affect the morals of the city from the bottom up. When alleged law breakers can threaten city officials with "bounding bricks from their heads" with impunity after consultation with another city official, it is time to call a halt. When ordinances can be violated and the violators exempted from prosecution it is time for an investigation. The day is coming when such an investigation is to be demanded by the people. "You can fool part of the people some of the time, but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

How about some man with the means or some corporation building a few modern houses for rent in the city? If the population is to increase they must have a place to live. This is one phase of the situation that has evidently been lost sight of by the business interests who seek to build up Janesville.

Why has the question of public utility entered into the present municipal campaign? Is it necessary for these public corporations to seek to control the city government, and if so, why? It is noticeable fact the candidates for office make haste to deny any promises of support from these companies. Why?

Janesville is waking up to the necessity of newer buildings with more modern and up-to-date equipments. Let the good work go on and not stop until every old ramshackle structure in the city is torn down or remodeled into a modern building.

No one individual is strong enough to defy the law, backed by no matter how strong a pull, nor can they continue to do so without being caught in the end in the net of justice. The Standard Oil and the Beef Packers tried it to their sorrow.

Madison is to have another donation from Andrew Carnegie for a second auxiliary library to be located in the eastern portion of the city. Truly, the state capitol is growing to need two. In Janesville the one library is not appreciated.

Milwaukee socialists plan to borrow money on the city's credit to put the unemployed at work. A good idea, but who is going to pay that money? The unemployed, out of their wages, or the taxpayers who are working?

It was thirty years ago today that Wisconsin was visited by one of the deepest snows of years. Does this story repeat itself, and is Wisconsin to have another storm of similar magnitude?

Why not ask your aldermanic candidates a few questions, Mr. Taxpayer, before it is too late? They might have something to say of interest to you.

There are wheels within wheels in every city government but sometimes they need oiling and not at star chamber sessions either.

In the crowd, but not of it, is a poor creature. Her face is that of a middle aged woman who has "seen better days."

Clothing? It is thin fabric—pathetically thin for such a bitter day. And low cut shoes and thin stockings. Face and hands are blue with cold. Eyes are full of tears, caused by the wind.

On her arm is one of those large old fashioned shopping bags. Through the rents may be seen the contents—pieces of kindling wood.

How painfully slow she walks and how carefully she crosses the street, fearful of the automobiles! The poor thing is evidently ill or weak, possibly both.

A piece of wood has fallen from a wagon and lies near the pavement. Casting a look about her as if to say, "Will any one grudge me this?" she slowly stoops to grasp the little stick.

Eyes follow her curiously as she shuffles down the avenue—a distressful figure.

A real photo? Just as the human lenses caught it and made the negative on the retina of the eyes.

But it is not all. There is a prettier phase. Another woman whose pluming eyes have followed the half frozen figure hastens after her and forces her to blue hands a ten dollar bill.

Whereat for the miserable woman are opened the gates of heaven.

TO GO TO MADISON TO PUSH A BILL

Joseph H. Scholler Will Appear in Madison in Interest of Pending Optometrist Bill.

Joseph H. Scholler, the optometrist, will be in Madison tomorrow to be present at a committee hearing before the senate committee of optometry. Mr. Scholler, who is chairman of the legislative committee of the Wisconsin Association of Optometrists, says that they have introduced a bill to create a state board of optometry, the object of the bill being to have everyone wishing to engage in the optical business for the purpose of examining and fitting of glasses, unless licensed by some recognized school, to pass an examination before a board appointed for that purpose. This, in itself, would produce a higher standard of education.

A similar law as the one introduced by the Wisconsin Association of Optometrists, through Senator Baudat of Milwaukee, is in force in twenty-five other states of the union, and it causes all the fakers and incompetents to come to Wisconsin. A hard fight is being waged, but it is for the protection of the general public the bill is receiving great consideration.

GUNNERS PLAN TO ORGANIZE FRIDAY

Practice Shoot Will Be Held at Fair Grounds and Steps Taken to Form Gun Club Here.

Steps toward the organization of a gun club in the city of Janesville will probably be taken this week, as a number of the local gunners are anxious to get together for the formation of a club. As yet the movement has taken no definite form beyond the calling of a gathering on Friday afternoon. At that time it is planned to open the season of trap-shooting with a practice shoot at the fair grounds. Those interested in the project are desirous of having a large number of the sportsmen out at that time.

GREAT LOVE STORIES of HISTORY
By Albert Payson Terhune

Virginia and Icilius

(Copyright, by the Author.)

A 15-year-old girl in 449 B. C. brought liberty to Rome. The price she paid was her own life. The girl was Virginia. Her fate forms one of the most romantic, dramatic love stories in all history.

Rome was in those days swayed alternately by two great political parties, the wealthy aristocrats known as "Patricians," and the plain people, who called themselves "Plebeians." Appius Claudius, a patrician, had persuaded the Romans to elect as their rulers a Decemviroate council of ten men, with himself at its head. This council had crushed the liberties of the people. The plebeians had formerly been represented and protected, by two elected officers, called tribunes. But the office of tribune had been abolished. Appius Claudius and his favorites were allowed to misgovern the city to suit themselves.

Some miles outside the walls one of Rome's two armies was encamped. In this army was a brave plebeian named Icilius. Virginia, who had risen to the rank of centurion (captain). He had one daughter, Virginia, whom he adored, and who, in her father's absence, remained at the centurion's house at Rome under care of her old nurse. A schoolgirl's nurse, young as she was, Virginia Lever, had already fallen in love with her father's friend, the brilliant young orator, Icilius. The two were betrothed, although Virginia was still a schoolgirl.

Appius Claudius had seen Virginia passing to and from school and resolved to make her his slave. He dared not seize her openly. So he told Marcus Claudius, one of his henchmen, to claim that she was one of Marcus' own slaves, stolen from his house in early childhood. This case was to be brought before Appius, who would give judgment in favor of Marcus and later receive the slave from him as a gift. Accordingly one morning, as Virginia was hurrying to school, Marcus and his servants arrested her. Icilius rushed to his frightened sweetheart's rescue. By his fiery eloquence he stirred up the anger of the townsfolk against Appius. A mob threatened the tyrant, forcing him to modify his first plan of deciding for Marcus. He agreed, plausibly, to postpone the hearing of his case until the next day, so that Virginia could be present to testify in his daughter's behalf. Then Appius sent secretly to the army, ordering its generals to prevent Virginia from leaving camp. But a messenger from Icilius reached the father first, and Virginia hastened to Rome. Next morning he and Icilius brought Virginia before Appius.

In vain the father and lover appealed for justice. Appius, without waiting to hear the evidence, decreed that the weeping girl was Marcus' slave. The people clamored against this wicked decision and attacked the man who made it. Appius summoned his guard to beat back the crowd. Virginia saw he could hope for no redress either by force or by law. One thing alone could save Virginia from a life of slavery. The father's resolve was quickly taken.

During the confusion Virginia drew his daughter to one side, clasped her to his breast and whispered words of tender farewell. He kissed her again and again and established her to the heart! Brandishing the stiletto knife, he strode across to Appius Claudius, crying:

"On your head be the curse of her blood!"

Icilius, wild with grief, snatched his dead love's body in his arms and held it aloft that all might see. The mob went mad with rage. They brushed aside the guards and charged the tyrant's judgment seat. Appius fled to his own house for safety. Meanwhile, Virginia, still clutching the red knife, hurried to the army and told what had occurred. Icilius mounted a fleet horse and galloped to where Rome's other army was encamped. Lashing the troops to fury by his passionate oratory, he led them back to Rome. There they joined the army which Virginia had aroused.

People and soldiery alike took possession of the city. The Decemviroate was overthrown.

The Clamor for Vengeance, and its members implored. The old popular government was resumed, with Icilius and Virginia as tribunes. Appius Claudius was thrown into jail. There (whether by execution or suicide is not known), he met his death. Virginia was avenged.

The pretty, harmless little girl who had been slain on the very threshold of life and love did not die in vain. From her blood sprang liberty and the people's rights. Yet the pathos of the sacrifice far overshadows the benefits that it has kept alive the memory of Virginia, in song, story and drama for nearly twenty-five hundred years.

Fear to Depend on Oil.

It is curious that the British naval authorities should have abandoned oil fuel at a time when in foreign ports it has been decided to substitute oil for coal. The British empire has very limited resources of oil fuel and at present the navy's supplies have to be imported. These supplies might be cut off in time of war and it is being given up.

My dear Bliss:

Permit me to congratulate you on your paper of Saturday night, having the New York fire. Yours is the only evening paper in Wisconsin which had it, and neither the Chicago Evening News or the Chicago Evening Post had a line about it. We got the messages here at 5:05, after the paper had been run off. What time did you get your report of it?

Sincerely yours,

J. L. Sturtevant.

The First Dispatch Regarding this Terrible Fire

came into the GAZETTE office, over the United Press long distance wire, at 4:20 o'clock, after the regular edition had been running on the press for twenty minutes. The press was stopped and the remainder of the edition carried the news, with the additions which arrived in Associated Press dispatches at 4:45 o'clock.

The Chicago papers, regular mail editions, did not carry it because they were off the press before the news happened.

The news facilities of the GAZETTE have proven their strength on many occasions when big stories have occurred.

WHICH ONE?

He—Why won't you marry me? Enough for one is always enough for two, you know.

She—Have you enough for one?

He—Yes.

She—Which one?

HOPEFUL.

"I understand your wife has joined the suffragettes?"

"Yes, and I'm glad of it."

"Then you approve of the suffragettes?"

"No. One of these days they'll do

QUITE DIFFERENT.

Constance—Did he tell you that?

Why, Clara, I don't see how you could have listened to him.

Clara—Well, you know, dear, he said it in French.

Constance—Oh, that's different.

HACKS MAN TO DEATH BANK CHIEF INDICTED

BODY FOUND AND SLAYER CONFESES TO DEED.

Achilles Penatarakis Tells at Kansas City of Killing and Dismembering of Frank Barbaree.

Chicago, March 29.—A hacked and terribly maimed body—all that remains of Frank Barbaree—was found in an old box which had been hidden under the back porch of a building at 733 Saber street.

The finding of the body was the culmination of an all-day search by the police following dispatches received from Kansas City telling of a confession by Achilles Penatarakis and his wife Angelique, who were arrested in the Missouri city.

The tragedy was enacted a week ago. Achilles says he killed Barbaree because the latter attacked his wife. Saturday night a week ago Achilles had gone to market to buy provisions, leaving Angelique and Barbaree in the house together. When he returned the wife was weeping. Angelique put her face on her husband's breast and said their guest had naked the wife to sleep with him. Achilles turned upon his false friend and grappled with him.

"I killed him," Achilles said, simply. "He was a traitor. He was strong, but so was I, and when he fell I was on top. With an ax I crushed his skull. He deserved death, and in my country death alone avenges his crime."

The Greek described his efforts to dispose of the body and told how he cut off the head with the same ax with which he had dealt the death blow; how he dismembered the trunk and packed it in a basket, and dragged the load down two flights of stairs to the coal cellar and hid it there.

That night husband and wife remained in the house. In the morning they packed their belongings and took the first train they could reach.

MORRIS KNOCKS OUT SCHRECK

"Only White Hope" Whips Cincinnati Pugilist in Six Rounds at Sapulpa.

Sapulpa, Okla., March 29.—Before one of the largest crowds, probably 10,000 people, ever gathered to see a boxing contest, Carl Morris of Sapulpa, Okla., knocked out Mike Schreck of Cincinnati, Ohio, in the sixth round after giving Schreck one of the hardest beatings he ever received in a six-round battle.

A straight right to the mouth turned the trick, and Mike went down before the pride of Oklahoma as his fifth victim of the padded circle.

Schreck gave Morris his hardest fight and is the first man to draw blood from the face of the "Only White Hope." When Mike landed a clean right to the nose, the taste of blood seemed to madden Morris, and he fought with renewed fury and knocked Schreck through the ropes out into the crowd.

Kenosha, Wis., March 29.—Harry Forbes, the veteran bantam fighter, and Johnny Coulon fought ten fast and furious rounds to a draw here before a crowd of 3,000 enthusiastic fans.

FOG, NOT THEFT, DELAYS SHIP

America May, However, Be Searched for the Missing Drummond Jewels.

New York, March 29.—It was simply the fog, and not another big robbery or any new development in the Drummond jewel mystery, as some rumors had it, that caused the detention of the steamer America outside the harbor for many hours after her arrival. The America had a little bad luck outside the bar, losing her starboard anchor and part of the anchor chain.

The vessel was boarded at Southampton on her outward voyage by detectives, who sought a trace of the $130,000 worth of jewelry missing from the stateroom of Mrs. Maudie Drummond, formerly of Chicago, on the liner's last voyage here.

WOMAN SPEAKER SHUT OUT

Bishop Cites Scripture in Refusing to Let Mrs. Grannie Talk in Cathedral at Albany, N. Y.

Albany, N. Y., March 29.—Bishop William Crosswell Doane has refused to permit Mrs. Elizabeth B. Grannis, president of the National League for the Promotion of Purity, to speak in All Saints' cathedral at the convention of the Purity league, which was to have been held here. In refusing Mrs. Grannis permission to speak the bishop quoted from 1. Corinthians, 14:34: "Let your women keep silence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to speak."

Weights and Measures Convention. Paris, March 29.—The convention of the International Bureau of Weights and Measures opened in this city today and has attracted a considerable number of experts from all parts of the world. The exhibits are decidedly interesting. The United States is represented by Samuel W. Stratton, director of the federal bureau of standards at Washington.

JOSEPH REICHMANN HELD IN CARNEGIE TRUST CASE.

Former President Is Charged With Making False Statements as to Condition of Institution.

New York, March 29.—Joseph B. Reichmann, former president of the defunct Carnegie Trust company, was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of having knowingly concurred in making a false statement last fall as to the condition of the institution.

Reichmann's plea was "not guilty," entered with leave to withdraw, and, although the charge against him is only a misdemeanor, bail was fixed at $10,000. It was furnished by a surety company.

It is alleged that in September, 1910, a statement of the bank's condition was made, purposely avoiding reference to liabilities for borrowed money, although, according to District Attorney Whitman, it is alleged that the company was liable for a demand note to the Northern Bank of New York for $130,000.

The Northern bank is one of the string of banks which failed after the exposure of the high financing schemes of Joseph G. Robin.

The indictment is the second against an official of the Carnegie Trust company, William J. Cummings, the directing head and promoter, having been indicted last week three times charged with larceny of large sums by note transactions.

Other indictments are expected and more than one hundred witnesses are yet to be examined.

SHEEHAN STAYS IN RACE

Democrat Will Try Again to Nominate Man for Senator—Some Desert Leader.

Albany, N. Y., March 29.—One Democratic caucus having failed to place a candidate in nomination for United States senator, the Democrat will meet again for another try.

Meanwhile the joint ballot in the legislature was expected to follow the legislature was expected to follow the tally of votes cast in the last caucus.

Twenty-five candidates were up at the caucus, William F. Sheehan leading with twenty-eight votes. Despite this dwindling of his support Mr. Sheehan's friends say he is not out of the race.

Negotiations between the Republicans and the "insurgents" added to the uncertainty of the situation.

Senator Brackett said he had received from Chauncy M. Depew a telegram releasing the Republicans from their caucus pledge to vote for him as the minority candidate.

Senator Edgar T. Brackett, minority leader of the New York state senate, declared that the Republican members of the legislature, with the aid of the Insurgent Democrats, intended to vote for Thomas Mott Osborne and elect him United States senator.

A report in general circulation is that Mr. Johnson is growing weaker.

NEW JUDGE IN COX CASE

Chief of Ohio Circuit Court Makes Substitution at Cincinnati Owing to Objection to Juror.

Cincinnati, O., March 29.—Upholding the contentions of Prosecuting Attorney Henry T. Hunt at every point, Judge Thomas A. Jones, chief judge of the Ohio circuit courts, removed from further consideration of the George B. Cox case Judges Peter Swing and Samuel W. Smith of the circuit court of Hamilton county. He designated his confreres in the fourth judicial circuit, Judges Postus Winters of Circleville, O., and E. D. Sayre of Athens, O., to act in place of the deposed jurats.

The action came upon affidavits alleging prejudice against Judge Frank Morian of the court of common pleas and in favor of Cox, filed by the prosecuting attorney last week following an injunction by the local court restraining Judge Gorman from proceeding with the trial of the perjury case against Cox.

Cincinnati, March 29.—The national commission decided, after due deliberation, that Waterloo, the club which recently enjoined the Three-League from throwing it out, is entitled to stay in. At the same time it is decided that Waterloo and Dubuque must dismiss the court proceedings recently brought, thus placing themselves on a footing of good fellowship with the other teams.

Wealth Awaits Inventor. One-seventh of the entire area of Ireland consists of bog lands—one bog alone, the bog of Allen, has an area of 240 square miles. This immense area is at present a sterile waste, but it will become a source of great wealth as soon as a method has been found for converting peat into an economical and desirable commercial fuel. Briquets of compressed peat are all right as long as they are kept absolutely dry, but the least moisture causes them to crumble to pieces.

Exception to General Rule. Lowell says: "The very quietest and hardest of hearts has some musical string in it," yet we are told that Dr. Johnson had no love of music, and that upon being told that a certain piece of music was very difficult, he expressed regret that it was not impossible. But Dr. Johnson was a human contradiction.

Anticipating an Answer, Sam Blithe, whose stories in one of the widely read weekly publications have gained him an extensive clientele of readers, says the Washington Times, found in his mail the other day a letter from a friend in the west, with whom he had passed a few pleasant hours in Washington around the holidays. The letter was a lengthy one, dealt with all sorts of subjects. After having appended the usual "Yours truly," the writer added a postscript. It read: "Sam, are you still on the water wagon? Neither am I."

Doctor Star Pumpkin Pie Maker. Dr. Silas L. McDonald is Oak Park's star pumpkin pie maker. His receipt won the prize position in the Euclid Avenue Methodist Episcopal church's cook book. He said his mother made good pumpkin pie, but his wife was better, and he followed her plan. Here it is: "To one quart of properly stewed pumpkin, pressed through colander, add enough good rich milk to moisten it, a teaspoonful of salt, one half cup of molasses, one tablespoonful of ginger and one teaspoonful of nutmeg. Bake in moderate oven."

Kansas Has No Women Dentists. Kansas is one of three states which have no women dentists. The other two are North Carolina and Idaho. This is somewhat unusual for Kansas, where nearly one-half of the county superintendents are women, where 10,000 out of 12,000 teachers are women, where 500 bank officials are women, where the only woman in the world is probate judge and where more woman's rights laws grace the statutes than in any other state of the union.—Kansas City Journal.

Why the Play Stopped. During the performance at the National theater, Marienbad, Bohemia, recently the curtain suddenly went down on the middle of an act. The manager presently explained that the curtain-riser had received a telegram announcing that he had won $8,000 in a lottery, and had dropped the curtain in his excitement.

DUTY TO OLD FOLKS

DEFERENCE FROM THE CHILDREN IS THEIR DUE.

Those Who Have for Lifetime Been Eager Workers Do Not Want to Sit With Their Hands Folded.

There should not be any unhappy old people. Age should bring its compensations of serenity and philosophy. As a matter of fact, however, the average old man or woman is far from content.

The problem which confronts sons and daughters in caring for their parents is a grave one. Old age is sensitive, and the feeling of uselessness fills many an active soul with restlessness and discontent.

Perhaps the greatest mistake that is made by young people is that, in their eagerness to relieve father and mother or grandfather or grandmother of burdens, they take away everything that makes life interesting. Those who have, for a lifetime, been eager workers do not want to sit with their hands folded, and so it often happens that father "butts into" his son's business affairs, and mother "meddles" with her daughter's housekeeping. Then comes friction, and the son or the daughter having shown plainly that they desire no interference, cannot understand that their rebuffs have seared the souls of the anxious, active old people.

It is always well, if possible, to provide something for the aged to do. If they can be made to feel that they are helping, their satisfaction will be supreme. If father has been a wise indulcer, it surely cannot hurt his son to talk over the affairs of the store or office. If mother has been a practical housekeeper, her daughter need not be too "unhappy" to take advice.

One dear lady's daughter insisted that she should sit with folded hands. Then when the old face took on unhappy, haggard lines, and the frail little body drooped, the anxious daughter asked the doctor, "What's the matter with her?"

He was a bluff old person and he thundered, "Give her something to do; she's pining for action." "But the maids don't like to have anyone around the kitchen," the daughter said.

"Then let her go there when the maids are out," the doctor suggested.

So on Thursday afternoon the dear little lady cooked the dinners. The whole family learned to look forward to them. And the satisfaction that mother got out of that one day in the week lasted her through the other six.

She made chicken pies, and she baked beans, she concocted sauces and soups and gravies after old-fashioned recipes, and when they were served she beamed across the table, as if to say: "Should I be put on the shelf when I can cook like this?"

The duty of children toward their grandparents often forms a great problem, but I believe that if there is any question of preference it is the grandparents who should have first consideration. No child can be hurt by being made to have an attitude of deference toward the aged. Often, if old people are eccentric, the children's sympathies will be at once aroused if we tell them "grandfather has borne so many weary burdens" or "grandmother has had sorrows." On the other hand, to say, "Never mind, grandfather is peculiar," or "grandmother is funny," will foster a contempt, which will be evidenced by the child's manner.

To those of us who grow impatient with the faults of old age there will come a day of reckoning. Some day all of us will be old. Do we wish our children to treat us as we are treating our parents? Would we be happy under the circumstances with which we have surrounded our aged father and mother?

DIRECT VOTE SOON TO BE UP TO THE STATES INDIVIDUALLY.

Washington.—Among the important fight in the senate over this question, and by Mr. Owen, whose measure requires to be considered by the extra session of congress in addition to the Sutherland amendment which was adopted in the senate and caused the defeat of the resolution of the people. This will require a constitutional amendment and the southern votes. Mr. Owen believes he has succeeded in framing the resolution. The plan as outlined is to pass this resolution in the house during the first week of the session. As the Senate Borah will urge a speedy report by the committee and the action of the Senate just before the close of the last session when a two-thirds vote of adoption failed by only four votes, justifies his contention that the Senate will not be willing to permit undue delay in committee.

The resolution when it goes to the Senate will be referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, where, also, will be sent resolutions framed by Senator Borah, who had charge of the recent

To Our Women Readers.

The Katherine Kip Editorial

OUR BODIES TEMPLES.

With less than a week for the letters on suggestions for the making of the Gazette more interesting to its woman readers remaining, every mail is bringing in numerous ideas from the women readers of the Gazette that demonstrate the popularity of this contest. For the most part they are on subjects of vital interest to every woman, while some even offer ideas as to the general appearance of the Gazette itself.

The contest closes this week and all letters that are entered must be sent addressed "Feature Editor," care of the Gazette, to reach the office on Friday. Each article must be plainly written on one side of the paper only and confined to about one hundred words. If mailed they should have a two-cent stamp on the envelope.

Remember the prizes offered for the best four articles on this subject.

FIRST PRIZE—CALORIC FIRELESS COOKSTOVE.
SECOND PRIZE—$5.00 IN MONEY.
THIRD PRIZE—$3.00 IN MONEY.
FOURTH PRIZE—$2.00 IN MONEY.

The names of the winners will be announced on Saturday, April 8th, and the awards will be made immediately. Owing to the number of answers to the request for suggestions it will take some days to decide which are the best and most deserving of the prizes. The interest taken in this contest has been remarkable and letters continue to come in every mail.

The Gazette will have another contest for its women readers which will be announced in one of the issues of the Gazette during the coming week. It promises to be even a more interesting one than the present contest and will offer ample opportunity for the housewife to test her skill in a manner which will be appreciated by the entire family.

The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON.

THE question came up as to whether a certain little mother was doing the right thing to allow her first baby to completely absorb her, to the extent of absolute neglect of and indifference to all other interests.

"Margaret used to be so interesting and progressive and alive," said her critic. "She read John's law books and took an interest in all his cases, and she used to read history with her younger sister who's teaching. She always read the papers and magazines and took such an interest in current affairs that John said she was better to talk to than any man. And she was always ready with bright ideas for the club and church entertainments. And now she's absolutely different. Of course, she was tied down when the baby was little, but now he's a year old and she has a spleen, a cold, and she might leave him occasionally, but she just won't. Of course, she couldn't do as much as she did, but she might do something except hang over that baby. Why she never reads anything and she goes about the house looking listlessly half the time.

"She worries over the baby so, that she is getting to look old and careworn, at twenty-eight, and she goes out so little that she's pale and listless. John never used to go to the club and now his brother meets him there continually. I think she's very foolish."

"And I think it's all right," promptly protested the man-who-thinks. "Perhaps it isn't much fun for John or for you girls who want her to be fooling around with him, but it's great for the baby. And that's the way it should be. She's devoting herself to bringing up a fine healthy boy and if she does that, she'll be doing more for the world than all the women who fuss around with church entertainments and Brownie clubs and neglect their babies."

Then the lady-who-always-knows-somehow took the floor.

"Isn't there a middle course?" she inquired. "It may be good for the baby for Margaret to half kill herself over him, and lose all interest in anything else, but how is it going to be when the baby grows up? Doesn't she owe him something then? You all know Little Mrs. Harrison. That's the way she brought up her five children—just gave herself up to them, dropped all contact with the world and all intellectual interests, made herself a slave to their whims and their needs, and now they are grown up, what kind of a companion is she to them? None at all."

"She's buried herself in the home so long that she can't understand the outside world that they are naturally interested in. And go she's howling that her girls don't seem to need her any more and that her son would rather confide in his aunt than in her. And the girls are saying that they wished their mother was like other girls' mothers and the boy is saying that his mother somehow can't understand. That's what's going to happen to Margaret some day, if she keeps on the way she's started."

Seems to me that the lady-who-always-knows-somehow just about hit the nail on the head.

Surely a mother does owe something to her grown up child as well as to her little baby.

Surely there is some some middle course between insane self extravagance for the baby's sake and neglect.

Someone has said: "The American mother is famous for her care of her baby and neglect of her child."

It seems to me that it is a well deserved criticism and one which the mother who is inclined to spend herself recklessly for the baby's sake to the detriment of the child's interest, might do well to keep in mind.

DAILY DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

By DR. T. J. ALLEN
Food Specialist

I WHERE WHITE BREAD FAILS.

It is urged by those who favor white bread that tests show a larger percentage of waste in the excreta from whole wheat bread; in other words, the fine white bread is more completely assimilated. This is the truth, but not the whole truth.

The whole wheat flour contains everything that the fine white flour contains, and some very valuable elements not in the white flour.

It is true that the elements of food of which the largest percentages are needed in the daily ration are carbon and nitrogen, and that white bread contains these in larger percentage, because excluding some valuable elements of nutrition found in the whole wheat. But the exclusion of these elements breaks the staff of life.

Prof. Magendie, a distinguished French physician, fed two dogs, apparently in equal health, one on white bread and the other on entire wheat bread, allowing both plenty of water and keeping the conditions otherwise as nearly equal as possible. The dog fed on fresh white bread was dead in about 30 days, while the other remained in his usual health.

The British Medical Association has declared itself in favor of the coarser breads made from the full grains. The London Lancet, the greatest medical journal in the world, has expressed the opinion that the great increase in appendicitis in Britain is due to the increased use of fine white bread.

MISS GRACE BRYAN.

Lincoln, Neb.—Miss Grace Bryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bryan, will be married early in June to Richard L. Hargreaves, a business man of Lincoln. Announcement of the engagement was made by Mr. and Mrs. Bryan. The attachment of the young couple is of long standing and has met the approval of their families.

An Accurate Statement.

You cannot expect that a friend should be like the atmosphere, which contains all manner of benefits upon you, and without which, indeed, it would be impossible to live, but at the same time is never in your way.

"Is you goin' duck huntin'?" asked Miss Miami Brown.

"No," replied Mr. Ernestine Phinney. "I ain't gwine special after ducks. An I is sufficiently acquainted wif them to premise I'm movin' on so dat I won't have to hunt."

A SUMMER GARDEN

I know a garden fair and wide
Where pale green roses nod and sway,
And branching on either side
Are purple, dulse, bright and gay.
The yellow lilies peep from out
A grapeleaf clatter bright and red,
And saffron pinks climb round about
With the other blooms their beauty shed.

A spray of dark blue, lignantine,
Nods by an orange gleaming black,
Some dark gray marigolds, etc., etc.,
When pure white rose, lavender, tumbles back;
A bunch of ripe green cherries, too,
Grow with a lot of silver grapes,
And peaches and apples of weird hue
Grow in a dozen varied shapes.

This garden—Walt! I think you'll see
Brewster's rose in golden that
The young's! I must these things that I have.

of wondrous hue and shape and glist,
This garden is no shady spot,
Bedded by a wall of living green,
No neatly planned and bounded plot
Where pleasant walks and nooks are seen.

No do the scientists there come
To view the wonders on display
And find themselves from wonder dumb
That such thingness the light of day,
Ah, no. Yet "the old" never does
This works these wonders to that
This wild and wild and queer expanses
Is but my imagination hat.

Oriental Ads.
Some Japanese advertisements, quoted in the review, Japan et Bulgaria, possess a wealth of imagery unknown to the western advertiser. A Tokio draper announces that "Our goods are sent to customers' houses with the speed of a shot from a rifle." A grocer proclaims his vinegar to be "more than the gall of the most dabbled of mothers-in-law." And a large multiple store displays a poster inscribed: "Why not visit our shops? We can satisfy every possible want of yours. Every one of our assistants is as complaisant and obliging as a father who sees to dispose of a downcast daughter. You will be as a welcome as a ray of sunshine coming after a day of ceaseless rain."

Only a Slight Difference.
"I've found that whinny ain't no different than men," says a wise old boy, "ceptin' that whinny eat candy and are more grateful in their dispositions, never forgettin' to say 'much obliged' when you give 'em a sensible coat or a diamond ring."

The BRONZE BELL

In the end, and in despair, Amber posted a notice on the ship's bulletin board, offering 50 guineas reward for the return of the photograph to him either before landing or at the Great Eastern hotel, Calcutta, and having thereby established his reputation as a mild lunatic, sat down to twirl his thumbs and await the outcome, confidently anticipating there would be none. "They" had outwitted him and not 500 guineas would tempt "them," he believed. It remained only to contrive a triumph in despite of this setback.

The Poomah slipped in to her dock under cover of darkness. Amber, disembarking with Doggett, climbed into an open ghat on the landing stage and was driven swiftly to his hotel.

As he alighted and, leaving Doggett to settle with the ghatwallah, crossed the sidewalk to the hotel entrance, a beggar slipped through the throng of wayfarers, whining at his elbow, "Give, O give, Protector of the Poor!"

Preoccupied, Amber hardly heard, and passed on; but the native stuck fast-like to his side.

"Give, Lazarus—and the mercy of God shall be upon the heaven-born for ten thousand years!"

Now "heaven-born" is flattery properly reserved for those who sit in high places. Amber turned and eyed the man curiously, at the same time dropping into the filthy, impudent palm a few annas.

"Stay the shadow of the heaven-born he long upon the land, when he shall have passed through the Gateway of Swords!"

And like a flash the man was gone—dodging nimbly round the ghat and across Old Court House street, losing himself almost instantly in the press of early evening traffic.

"The devil!" said Amber thoughtfully. "Why should it be assumed that I have any shadow of an intention of entering that damnable Gate-way of Swords?"

An incident at the desk, while he was arranging for his room, further mystified him. He had given his name to the clerk, who looked up, smiling.

"Mr. David Amber?" he said.

"Why, yes—"

"We were expecting you, sir. You came by the Poomah?"

"Yes, but—"

"There's a letter for you," The man turned to a rack, sorting out a small square envelope from others pigeonholed under "A."

Could it be possible that Sophie Marcell had been advised of his coming? Amber's hand trembled slightly with eagerness and excitement as he took the missive.

"An Eurasian boy left it for you half an hour ago," said the clerk.

"Thank you," returned Amber, controlling himself sufficiently to wait until he should be conducted to his room before opening the note.

It was not, he observed later, supervised in a feminine hand. Could it be from Quain's friend Labertouché? Who else? . . . Amber lifted his shoulders resignedly. "I wish Quain had minded his own business," he said wistfully; "I can take care of myself. This Labertouché'll probably make life a misery for me."

There was a quality in the note, however, to makes him forget his resentment of Quain's well-meant interference.

"My Dear Sir," it began, formally. "Quain's letter did not reach me until this afternoon; a circumstance which I regret. Otherwise I should be better prepared to assist you. I have, on the other hand, set about inquiries which may shortly result in some interesting information bearing upon the matters which engage you. I expect to have news of the PM, to-night, and shall be glad to communicate it to you at once. I am presuming that you propose losing no time in attending to the affairs of the goldsmith, but I take the liberty of advising you that to attempt to find him without proper guidance or preparation would be an undertaking hazardous in the extreme. May I offer to you my services? If you decide to accept them, be good enough to come before ten to-night to the salons of Honest George's, book of the Last Supper, and ask for Honest George himself, refraining from mentioning my name. Dress yourself in your old coat and shabby clothing; you cannot overdo this since the neighborhood is questionable and a well-dressed man would immediately be welcomed as a subject of suspicion."

Honest George himself, a fat and burly ruffian who filled to overflowing the inadequate accommodation of an arm-chair. Sitting thus enthroned in his shirt-sleeves, his greasy and unshaven red face irradiating a sort of low good-humor that was belied by the cold cunning of his little eyes, he fulfilled admirably the requirements of the role he played soft-sell.

"Ere, you!" he halled. "Another brusquely. "You're a 'oll of a job-unter, ain't you? Mister Abercrombie's been wytin' for you this hour gone. Know the w'y upstairs?"

His tone was boisterous enough to fix upon Amber the attention of the knot of loafers round the arm-chair. Amber felt himself under the particular regard of a dozen pairs of eyes, felt that his measure was taken and his identification complete. Displeased, he answered curtly: "No."

"It's w'y, then?" Honest George hollered himself ponderously out of his armchair and lumbered heavily across the room, shouldering the crowd aside with a high-handed contempt for the pack of them. Jerking open a small door in the side wall, he heckled Amber on with a backward nod of his heavy head. "Be a bit lively, earn't you?" he growled; and Amber, in despite of quidins of distrust, followed the fellow into a small and holomey halfway lighted by a single gas jet. On the one hand a flight of rickety steps ran up into repellent obscurity; on the other a low door stood open to the night.

The crimp lowered his voice. "Your friend's this w'y." He waved his fat red hand toward the door. "Them fools back there'll think you're tryin' for a berth with Abercrombie, the shipmaster. I open you'll not tyke offense at the w'y I ad to rag you back there, sir."

"No," said Amber, and Honest George led the way out into a small, haggard well between towering black walls and left him at the threshold of a second doorway. "Two flights up, the door at the top," he said: "Knock twice and then twice." And without waiting for an answer he hurried heavily back to his own establishment.

Amber watched his broad back fill the dimly lighted doorway opposite and disappear, of two minds whether or not to turn tail and run. Suspicious enough in the beginning, the air had now an exceeding evil smell—as repulsive figuratively as was the actual effluvia of the premises.

With a shrug, at length, he took his courage in his hands—and his life, too, for all he knew to the contrary—and moved on into the blackness, groping his way cautiously down a short corridor, his fingers on either side brushing walls of rotten plaster.

He had absolutely nothing to guide him beyond the crimp's terse instructions. Underfoot the flooring seemed to sag ominously; it creaked hideously. Abruptly he stumbled against an obstruction, halted, and litigated a match.

KENTUCKY'S FAMOUS EX-GOVERNOR NEAR DEATH.—EX-GOVERNOR N. PROCTOR KNOTT.

Leavenworth, Ky.—At the age of 82 ex-Governor J. Proctor Knott is dying at his home here. His life has been devoted to the practice of law, with politics and education as his hobby. Except for twenty years spent in Missouri, Governor Proctor has lived in Kentucky his entire life. In Missouri he was successful in politics, has been a member of the state legislature and later attorney general. In 1862 he returned to Kentucky, where he took up the practice of law. He was elected to congress and in 1882 was made governor of Kentucky. In 1882 he was asked to become professor of civics and economics in Central college. Two years later he was made dean of the law faculty of the same institution.

"My Dear Sir," it began, formally. "Quain's letter did not reach me until this afternoon; a circumstance which I regret. Otherwise I should be better prepared to assist you. I have, on the other hand, set about inquiries which may shortly result in some interesting information bearing upon the matters which engage you. Dress yourself in your old coat and shabby clothing; you cannot overdo this since the neighborhood is questionable and a well-dressed man would immediately be welcomed as a subject of suspicion."

Amber thanked her quietly, and, extricating himself from the press around the bar, made his way in the direction indicated. A couple of billiard tables with a small mob of loafers hindered him, but by main strength and diplomacy he wormed his way past and reached the rear of the room. There were fewer loafers here and he had little hesitation about selecting from an attendant circle of scyphophants the genius of the dive.

RAISING ANGORA GOATS.

A news item from Holland brings information that Queen Wilhelmina is one of the leading spirits in a concert that is planning the raising of Angora goats in Alabama. It is said that enormous profits attend this industry. The government, having made investigation of the subject, declares that no business is more promising. It particularly appeals to the farmer whose land is ill fitted for agricultural purposes. Sheep hills and rugged soil are appropriate.

It seems that the finest fables are made from the wool of the Angora goat, and, while it is not promised that their flesh will be less expensive for meat than the common high price staples of the day, it will afford some thing new and altogether palatable. Their milk, on the other hand, exceeds that of the cow in richness. Their pelts are made into robes and their skins into leather. Even a few of these animals will net the part of a police force for a flock of sheep against the incursions of wolves and dogs, any children find them safe and pleasant pets.

In this connection it may have been known to Queen Wilhelmina that Director Hornaday of the New York Zoological park, in the Bronx, has worked out the science of acclimating mountain climbing goats to the conditions at sea level. Animals from the rarefied atmosphere of the snow clad peaks of the Rockies, accustomed to live 8,000 or 10,000 feet above sea level are now thriving beside the ocean.
